

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: Gender in Transition Ulrike Gleixner and Marion W. Gray	I
Part I. Law, Administration, Moral Discourse, and Gender
Gender as a Medium of Change in Berlin's Politics of Poverty, 1770–1850 Dietlind Hüchtker	25
The Development of the Discourse on Infanticide in the Late Eighteenth Century and the New Legal Standardization of the Offense in the Nineteenth Century Kerstin Michalik	51
Part II. The Economy, the Public, and the Private
Gender and Control in the Merchant's World: Stralsund, 1750–1830 Daniel A. Rabuzzi	75
“But the Heart Must Speak for the Widows”: The Origins of Life Insurance in Germany and the Gender Implications of Actuarial Science Eve Rosenhaft	90
Master and Subject, or Inequality as Felicitous Opportunity: Gender Relations of the Nineteenth-Century Middle Class Rebekka Habermas	114
Part III. Religious Imagery and Spiritual Empowerment
The Representation of Women in Religious Art and Imagery: Discontinuities in “Female Virtues” Stefanie Schäfer-Bossert	137

Spiritual Empowerment and the Demand of Marital Obedience: A Millenarian Woman and Her Journal Ulrike Gleixner	157
Part IV. The Late Enlightenment, Professionalization, and Exclusion
The Brief Flowering of Women's Journalism and Its End around 1800 Ulrike Weckel	175
Transition toward Invisibility: Women's Scientific Activities around 1800 Beate Ceranski	202
"Lights Out! Lights Out!" Women and the Enlightenment Ruth Dawson	218
Enlightenment Vocabulary and Female Difference: Two Women Writers' Search for Inclusive Language Marion W. Gray	246
Part V. Conceptualization of Masculinity and Femininity
Protecting Manliness in the Age of Enlightenment: The New Physical Education and Gymnastics in Germany, 1770–1800 Teresa Sanislo	265
Sitten und Mode : Fashion, Gender, and Public Identities in Hamburg at the Turn of the Nineteenth Century Katherine B. Aaslestad	282
Ideal Sociability: Friedrich Schleiermacher and the Ambivalence of Extrasocial Spaces William Rasch	319
Works Cited	341
Contributors	379
Index	381