

Ecology and the Sacred

Ecology and the Sacred

Engaging the Anthropology of
Roy A. Rappaport

Edited by
ELLEN MESSER and
MICHAEL LAMBEK

Ann Arbor

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN PRESS

Copyright © by the University of Michigan 2001
All rights reserved
Published in the United States of America by
The University of Michigan Press
Manufactured in the United States of America
♻️ Printed on acid-free paper

2004 2003 2002 2001 4 3 2 1

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, or otherwise, without the written permission of the publisher.

A CIP catalog record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Ecology and the sacred : engaging the anthropology of Roy A. Rappaport / edited by Ellen Messer and Michael Lambek.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 0-472-11170-1 (alk. paper)

1. Rites and ceremonies. 2. Ritual. 3. Religion. 4. Human ecology.
5. Maring (Papua New Guinea people) 6. Rappaport, Roy A.
I. Rappaport, Roy A. II. Messer, Ellen. III. Lambek, Michael.

GN473 .E26 2001

306.6'9138—dc21

2001018112

For Skip

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Thinking and Engaging the Whole: The Anthropology of Roy A. Rappaport Ellen Messer	1
Bibliography of the Works of Roy A. Rappaport	39
Part I. Ecology and the Anthropology of Trouble
Kicking Off the Kaiko : Instability, Opportunism, and Crisis in Ecological Anthropology Susan H. Lees	49
Human Ecology from Space: Ecological Anthropology Engages the Study of Global Environmental Change Emilio F. Moran and Eduardo S. Brondizio	64
Ecological Embeddedness and Personhood: Have We Always Been Capitalists? Alf Hornborg	88
Considering the Power and Potential of the Anthropology of Trouble Barbara Rose Johnston	99
Teens and Troubles in the New World Order Fran Markowitz	122
Part II. Ritual Structure and Religious Practice
The Life and Death of Ritual: Reflections on Some Ethnographic and Historical Phenomena in the Light of Roy Rappaport's Analysis of Ritual Robert I. Levy	145

New Ways in Death and Dying: Transformation of Body and Text in Late Modern American Judaism. A Kaddish for Roy “Skip” Rappaport Peter K. Gluck	170
Monolith or the Tower of Babel? Ultimate Sacred Postulates at Work in Conservative Christian Schools Melinda Bollar Wagner	193
Belief Beheld—Inside and Outside, Insider and Outsider in the Anthropology of Religion James Peacock	207
Notes for a Cybernetics of the Holy Thomas J. Csordas	227
Rappaport on Religion: A Social Anthropological Reading Michael Lambek	244
Part III. The Papua New Guinea Context: Following Skip’s Ethnographic Footsteps
Rappaport’s Maring: The Challenge of Ethnography Andrew Strathern and Pamela J. Stewart	277
Reflections on Pigs for the Ancestors Gillian Gillison	291
Averting the Bush Fire Day: Ain’s Cult Revisited Polly Wiessner and Akii Tumu	300
Reading Exchange in Melanesia: Theory and Ethnography in the Context of Encompassment Edward LiPuma	324
List of Contributors	353
Index	357

Acknowledgments

The idea of producing a festschrift volume to engage Skip Rappaport's anthropology originated in the spring of 1996, shortly before his announcement that he had incurable cancer. In the months that followed, a trio of Skip's Michigan colleagues (Tom Fricke, Steve Lansing, Barbara Smuts) and another pair of his former students (Aletta Biersack, Jim Greenberg) announced their desires and intentions to honor Skip. Although in the end we each went our separate ways, we would like to thank them here for their early collaborative efforts, gracious support, and successful independent projects which informed our work. We would also like to thank Gisli Pálsson, A. P. Vayda, Howard Kunreuther, Laura Kunreuther, Kai Erikson, and Howard Norman, who participated at various points in this project. Our editors at the University of Michigan Press, Susan Whitlock and later Ingrid Erikson, provided encouragement and good advice that assisted the project to completion. We are indebted to Conrad Kottak and the Department of Anthropology at the University of Michigan for a generous gift that provided partial subsidy for the volume and to Ann Rappaport for her advice.

Ellen also would like to thank Jean Jackson for her critical readings and mention gratefully the hospitality of her college classmates, Peg and Jeff Padnos, now of Holland, Michigan, who provided good company and the gift of friendship during a critical period each summer. Michael thanks Deidre Rose and Sarah Gould for editorial assistance, the Social Science and Humanities Research Council of Canada and the Division of Social Sciences, University of Toronto at Scarborough for financial support, and Jackie Solway for her steady counsel.

Each of us would like to thank the other for friendship, inspiration, and cooperation throughout the editing process, and we both thank our contributors, whose enthusiastic responses assisted in thinking and engaging the whole, and producing the kind of wide-ranging anthropology volume that we trust would have pleased our mentor.

