Acknowledgments

We are grateful to our colleagues David Delaney, Nasser Hussain, and Thomas R. Kearns for helping us think about what it means to live in the law and for their help in shaping the ideas that inform this book. We thank our students in Amherst College's Department of Law, Jurisprudence and Social Thought for their interest in the issues addressed in Lives in the Law. Finally, we would like to express special appreciation to the Keck Foundation and to the Amherst College Faculty Lecture Committee for their generous financial support.
