

Re-Forming the State

Re-Forming the State

The Politics of Privatization
in Latin America and Europe

Hector E. Schamis

Ann Arbor

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN PRESS

Copyright © by the University of Michigan 2002

All rights reserved

Published in the United States of America by

The University of Michigan Press

Manufactured in the United States of America

● Printed on acid-free paper

2005 2004 2003 2002 4 3 2 1

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, or otherwise, without the written permission of the publisher.

A CIP catalog record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data applied for

ISBN 0-472-11257-0 (cloth)

ISBN 0-472-08850-5 (paper)

To A.A.H.M.

Contents

List of Tables ix

Acknowledgments xi

Part 1. The Approach

1. Introduction 3

Part 2. Stylizing the Approach: Chile's Reform Experiment

2. From State to Market:
The Chilean Policy Reform Experiment 29
3. Distributional Coalitions and the Politics of Market Reform and Privatization in Chile 48
4. Re-Forming the State: Privatization, Centralization of Power, and Institutional Change in Chile 67

Part 3. Privatization as Coalition Building and State Formation: Comparative Perspectives on Economic Reform

5. Britain: From Keynesianism to Thatcherism and Beyond 87
6. Mexico and Argentina: From Import Substitution to Privatization under Postpopulism 112
7. Hungary: From State Socialism to Democratic Capitalism 142

Part 4. Conclusions

8. Economic Reform, State Formation, and Democracy:
Inconvenient Facts and Avenues for Future Research 173

Index 197

Tables

1. Share of Public Sector in GDP and Number of State-Owned Enterprises (SOEs) in Chile	39
2. Privatization of State-Owned Stock among the Largest Conglomerates in Chile, 1974–78	57
3. Degree of Concentration of the 250 Largest Private Companies in Chile, 1978	58
4. Phases and Main Proceeds of Privatization in Britain, 1979–90 (£ million)	98
5. Sales of Dwellings by Local Authorities in Britain, 1960–89	99
6. Number of Shareholders in Selected Companies in Britain, at Date of Main Sale and in 1990	101

Acknowledgments

In writing this book, which has been long in the making, I have incurred many intellectual debts. Over time colleagues read all, parts, or preliminary versions of the manuscript. Others read and commented on related work, which later became integrated into the book. For helpful suggestions and criticisms, as well as their encouragement with the project, I thank Miguel Angel Centeno, Douglas Chalmers, Edward Gibson, Blanca Heredia, Robert Kaufman, Isaac Kramnick, Mark Lichbach, Oscar Muñoz, Guillermo O'Donnell, Etel Solingen, Alfred Stepan, Kathleen Thelen, and Andrés Velasco. I also thank participants in seminars at Brown, Princeton, and Yale Universities whose comments helped me refine the argument, especially Jeremy Adelman, Linda Cook, Geoffrey Garrett, Pauline Jones Luong, Marsha Pripstein Posusney, Victoria Murillo, and Paul Sigmund.

While writing this book, I was simultaneously working on the political economy of exchange rate policy in Latin America. That research was particularly relevant for my work on privatization. I thank Eugenio Díaz-Bonilla, Jeffry Frieden, and Ernesto Stein for their insightful comments during the two-year collective project.

At Cornell, I gratefully acknowledge comments made by participants and colleagues at the Political Economy Research Colloquium and the Latin American Studies Program Seminar. I especially thank Benedict Anderson, Matthew Evangelista, Béla Greskovits, Jonathan Kirshner, and Christopher Way. I also thank Matthew Ferchen, Stephen Jackson, Anirudh Krishna, and Arturo Santa-Cruz for discussing parts of the manuscript with great scrutiny in different seminars.

I also want to thank two anonymous reviewers for the University of Michigan Press for their helpful criticisms, and Jeremy Shine, political science and law editor, for his hard work and support during the process. Finally, my deepest gratitude goes to Anna Eliasson, for her countless readings of the manuscript, criticisms, suggestions, and for everything else.