

Contents

Introduction	xi
Chapter 1 “Plagiarism” Hysteria: Taking a Stance against the Cat-and-Mouse Game	1
The Cat-and-Mouse Game	1
Removing the Ethical Frame from Discussions of Source Use	3
L2 Student Writers in an Age of “Plagiarism” Hysteria	7
Issues in L2 Writers’ Source Use	8
Revisiting the Wrongness of “Plagiarism”	11
Take-Away Points	12
Chapter 2 The Concept Dimension: Exploring the Cultural Constructs Surrounding the Terms Originality and Plagiarism	13
What We Know from Research and Theory	14
Authority: Voice, Originality, and Transformed Knowledge	14
Ownership, Community Membership, and Common Knowledge	17
“Plagiarism” and Copyright	18
Connecting to the Classroom	20
Lessons 1–6	21
Take-Away Points	36
Chapter 3 The Discourse Dimension: Teaching How Writers Use References to Situate Themselves in a Discourse Community	37
What We Know from Research and Theory	38
Using References to Establish a Framework of Ideas and Authority	38
Connecting References to One’s Own Beliefs and the Engagement of Readers	39
Differences in Source Use across Disciplinary Discourse Communities	42
Connecting to the Classroom	44
Lessons 1–7	45
Take-Away Points	65

Chapter 4 The Sentence Dimension: Addressing Patchwriting, Paraphrasing, Summarizing, and Quoting	66
What We Know from Research and Theory	67
Patchwriting and Copying: Learning English by Reusing Text	67
Paraphrasing and Formulaic Language	69
Incorporation of Paraphrases, Summaries, and Quotes	72
Connecting to the Classroom	77
Lessons 1–6	78
Take-Away Points	93
Chapter 5 The Process Dimension: Helping Writers Develop Effective Strategies for Reading, Thinking, and Writing	94
What We Know from Research and Theory	95
The Role of Thinking in the Reading-Writing Process	95
Effective Reading-Thinking-Writing Processes	96
Connecting to the Classroom	105
Lessons 1–6	106
Take-Away Points	118
Chapter 6 The Response Dimension: Developing Discussions around Source Use Decisions	119
What We Know from Research and Theory	120
Formative Response: A Pedagogical Approach	120
Understanding Source Use Decisions: Feedback as Dialogue	122
Centering the Student: Peer Review and Self-Assessment	124
Connecting to the Classroom	126
Lessons 1–6	127
Take-Away Points	137

Chapter 7 Bringing It All Together: Teaching the Dimensions of Source Use	138
Teaching the Basics: Jennifer’s Approach	140
Context	141
Course Goals	141
Teaching the Dimensions	142
Connecting Experience with Theme-Based Source Content: Zuzana’s Approach	146
Context	147
Course Goals	148
Teaching the Dimensions	149
Developing Independent Learners: Ilka’s Approach	153
Context	153
Course Goals	154
Teaching the Dimensions	154
Teaching Values	158
Final Thoughts	159
Appendix 1: Lessons Chart	160
Appendix 2: Teaching Materials	166
Appendix 3: Writing Samples	172
Appendix 4: Idea Organizers	190
References	196