

Skin Deep, Spirit Strong: The Black Female Body in American Culture Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, Editor
<http://www.press.umich.edu/titleDetailDesc.do?id=10810>
The University of Michigan Press, 2002

SKIN DEEP, SPIRIT STRONG

Skin Deep, Spirit Strong: The Black Female Body in American Culture Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, Editor
<http://www.press.umich.edu/titleDetailDesc.do?id=10810>
The University of Michigan Press, 2002

SKIN DEEP, SPIRIT STRONG

The Black Female Body in American Culture

Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, Editor

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN PRESS

Ann Arbor

Copyright © by the University of Michigan 2002
All rights reserved
Published in the United States of America by
The University of Michigan Press
Manufactured in the United States of America
♻️ Printed on acid-free paper

2005 2004 2003 2002 4 3 2 1

No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, or otherwise, without the written permission of the publisher.

A CIP catalog record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Skin deep, spirit strong : the Black female body in American culture / Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, editor.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 0-472-09707-5 (alk. paper) — ISBN 0-472-06707-9 (pbk. : alk. paper)

1. African Americans in popular culture. 2. Women in popular culture—United States.
3. African American women—Race identity. 4. African American women—Social conditions. 5. Gender identity—United States. 6. Body, Human, in literature. 7. Human figure in art. 8. Racism in popular culture—United States. 9. United States—Race relations. 10. Popular culture—United States. I. Wallace-Sanders, Kimberly, 1962—

E185.625 .S55 2003

305.48'896073—dc21

2002075016

Dedicated to my students, who manage to get under my skin and next to my heart in the most surprising ways.

And to my son, Isaiah Anthony Wallace Sanders, who taught me that the body must be loved from the inside out.

Skin Deep, Spirit Strong: The Black Female Body in American Culture Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, Editor
<http://www.press.umich.edu/titleDetailDesc.do?id=10810>
The University of Michigan Press, 2002

Acknowledgments

There were many torchbearers on this journey. The kind words and actions of friends, family members, colleagues, and students helped me to navigate my way through terrain that was far more challenging than I ever expected. There are moments in academic study that cause some subtle yet profound shifts in thinking. Most often these are quiet moments that occur between you and the page. If you are fortunate they also occur between you and your colleagues. I am indebted to Jeanne Bergman and Siobhan Somerville for directing me to new ways of imagining the antebellum plantation as the body politic and to Karla Holloway, Hazel Carby, bell hooks, and Susan Bordo for igniting my fierce interest in the Black female body.

The major work on this book was made possible by a Rockefeller funded grant to the Womanist Studies Consortium at the University of Georgia in 1997. Their associated faculty, Layli Phillips, Barbara McCaskill, and Velma Murray were helpful to me during my leave from Spelman College. The New York University Faculty Resource Network also supported this work; special thanks go to Phillip Michael Harper and Tricia Rose for patiently listening to my thoughts and offering much needed advice.

My editor, LeAnn Fields, has a wonderfully rare combination of wit and wisdom; she, Laurie Clark-Klavins, and Abigail Potter provided invaluable assistance to me. All of the contributors to this volume constitute an impressive group of scholars and writers; I am proud to be affiliated with them.

My Atlanta colleagues Beverly Guy-Sheftall, Francis Smith Foster, Rudolph Byrd, and Johnnetta B. Cole sustained me with generous mentoring and an unwavering faith in my abilities. Darlene Clark Hine and Ann duCille also provided tremendous encouragement to me at crucial stages of this work; both scholars continue to raise the bar of excellence so that it is never out of sight and just barely out of reach. Rosemarie Garland Thomson read and made valuable contributions to my introduction.

I extend my deep gratitude to Audree Irons and the student staff at the Spelman College Women's Research and Resource Center, especially

Acknowledgments

Shanell McGoy, who made a wonderful contribution to one of these essays simply by asking the right question. I am delighted to commend outstanding Emory graduate students Michelle Wilkinson, Jennifer Steadman, Ariel Browne, Abigail Blankner, and Andy Lowry, who made valuable contributions to the completion of this work: each has the makings of an exceptional scholar.

My true sisters of the spirit—Suzette Garland, Leslie Harris, Vanessa Jackson, Kathryn Naylor, Bethany Poindexter, and Claire Sanders—extended themselves to me in the most important ways throughout the duration of this project. Robyn Thurston Guy, Phyllis Rose, and Estelle Vaughn have sustained me with unwavering friendship since our Oberlin days. Atlanta artist Mary Logan bolstered my confidence when I almost gave up. Elizabeth Alexander, Nikki Finney, and Opal Moore threw lifelines of poetry to me when I needed them most.

I am grateful to my parents, Rose Hardman Wallace and Raymond Wallace, who taught me my very first lesson about my own body: that it is one small measure of who I am as a human being. Their emotional and financial support over the years has sustained my body, mind, and spirit. My brothers, Chris and Greg Wallace, have given me enormous boosts of confidence over the years. (Thanks, Greg, for leading me to a crucial insight that allowed me to take the manuscript to the post office and just walk away.) My grandmother Adeline Hardman let me sit on her lap long after it was appropriate, teaching me a significant life lesson about the female body and comfort. My mother and my mother-in-law, Arthrell Sanders, rescued me with unlimited child-care and last-minute proofreading, thus allowing the book to go to press on time.

I extend my most affectionate gratitude to my partner in life, Mark A. Sanders, who listened to endless discussions about this work and still managed to smile and nod encouragingly at all the right times. He is, quite simply, an extraordinary human being who makes my life richer in every moment.

I stand on this path in the footprints of my elders and in the light of my ancestors. I want to honor the memory of my late grandfather, Henry Hardman, who was fond of telling the women in my family that we had hourglass figures, with all of the sand at the bottom.

Grateful acknowledgment is given to the following publishers for permission to use copyrighted material.

“Some Could Suckle over Their Shoulder,” by Jennifer L. Morgan, William and Mary Quarterly 54 (January 1997): 167–92. Reprinted by permission of the Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture.

“Gender, Race, and Nation,” by Anne Fausto-Sterling, in Jennifer Terry and

Acknowledgments

Jacqueline Urla, eds., Deviant Bodies (Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1995), 19–48. Reprinted by permission of Indiana University Press.

“The Prettiest Specimen of Boyhood,” in Siobhan Somerville, Queering the Color Line: Race and the Invention of Homosexuality in American Culture (Durham: Duke University Press, 2000), 100–106. Reprinted by permission of Duke University Press. © 2000, Duke University Press. All rights reserved.

“Coming Out Blackened and Whole,” by Elizabeth Alexander, American Literary History 6 (winter 1994): 695–715. Reprinted by permission of Oxford University Press.

“What (N)ever Happened to Aunt Jemima,” by Doris Witt, Discourse 17, no. 2 (1994–95): 98–122. Reprinted by permission of the Wayne State University Press. © Wayne State University Press.

“Mastering the Female Pelvis,” by Terri Kapsalis, in her Public Privates: Performing Gynecology from Both Ends of the Speculum (Durham: Duke University Press, 1997), 31–59. Reprinted by permission of Duke University Press. © 1997 Duke University Press. All rights reserved.

“Black (W)holes and the Geometry of Black Female Sexuality,” by Evelyn Hammonds, differences 6 (summer–fall 1994): 1–59. Reprinted by permission of Indiana University Press.

“The Black Look and ‘the Spectacle of Whitefolks’: Wildness in Toni Morrison’s Beloved,” in SIDESHOW U.S.A. (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2001), 161–85. Reprinted by permission of the University of Chicago Press.

Every effort has been made to trace the ownership of all copyrighted material in this book and to obtain permission for its use.

Skin Deep, Spirit Strong: The Black Female Body in American Culture Kimberly Wallace-Sanders, Editor
<http://www.press.umich.edu/titleDetailDesc.do?id=10810>
The University of Michigan Press, 2002

Contents

List of Illustrations	xiii
Introduction Kimberly Wallace-Sanders	1

The Body Politic: Black Female Sexuality and the Nineteenth-Century Euro-American Imagination Beverly Guy-Sheftall	13
“Some Could Suckle over Their Shoulder”: Male Travelers, Female Bodies, and the Gendering of Racial Ideology, 1500–1770 Jennifer L. Morgan	37
Gender, Race, and Nation: The Comparative Anatomy of “Hottentot” Women in Europe, 1815–17 Anne Fausto-Sterling	66

Economies of the Flesh: Representing the Black Female Body in Art Lisa Collins	99
Faith Ringgold’s Slave Rape Series Lisa E. Farrington	128
The Black Look and “the Spectacle of Whitefolks”: Wildness in Toni Morrison’s Beloved Rachel Adams	153

Contents

Naked, Neutered, or Noble: The Black Female Body in America and the Problem of Photographic History Carla Williams	182
“The Prettiest Specimen of Boyhood”: Cross-Gender and Racial Disguise in Pauline E. Hopkins’s Winona Siobhan B. Somerville	201
“Coming Out Blackened and Whole”: Fragmentation and Reintegration in Audre Lorde’s Zami and The Cancer Journals Elizabeth Alexander	218

What (N)ever Happened to Aunt Jemima: Eating Disorders, Fetal Rights, and Black Female Appetite in Contemporary American Culture Doris Witt	239
Mastering the Female Pelvis: Race and the Tools of Reproduction Terri Kapsalis	263
Black (W)holes and the Geometry of Black Female Sexuality Evelynn Hammonds	301

Conclusion

Directing the Gaze: An Inside Look at Making Naked Acts Bridgett Davis	323
List of Contributors	335
Index	339

Illustrations

Fig. 1. Édouard Manet, Olympia , 1863	15
Fig. 2. Marie-Guilhelmine Benois, Portrait d'une négresse , 1800	16
Fig. 3. Nicolas Huet le Jeune, Saartjie Baartman, the "Hottentot Venus," 1815	19
Fig. 4. Léon de Wailley, Saartjie Baartman, the "Hottentot Venus," 1815	19
Fig. 5. The preserved genitalia of the "Hottentot Venus"	20
Fig. 6. An engraving of a "Hottentot Venus" at the Ball of the Duchess du Barry, 1829	20
Fig. 7. The "Hottentot Venus," a German caricature from the beginning of the nineteenth century	21
Fig. 8. Paul Gauguin, Manoa Tupapau (Spirit of the Dead Watching), 1892	22
Fig. 9. Judy Chicago, The Dinner Party , Sojourner Truth plate, 1979	28
Fig. 10. Young virgin covering her breast, from A brief and True Report of the New Found Land of Virginia , 1590	46
Fig. 11. Woman suckling child, from Eorum Quae in Florida . . . , 1591	47
Fig. 12. Woman holding leg, from Memorable Provinciae Brasiliae . . . , 1592	48
Fig. 13. Women on the map of Tierra del Fuego, from Vera et Accurate Descriptio eorum omnius Quae Acciderunt Quinque navibus, Anno 1598 , 1602	49
Fig. 14. Woman breastfeeding over her shoulder, from Verum et Historicam Descriptionem Avriferi Regni Guineaa , 1604	53
Fig. 15. Women in Africa, from Verum et Historicam Descriptionem Avriferi Regni Guineaa , 1604	54
Fig. 16. Native American woman with her child, from A brief and True Report of the New Found Land of Virginia , 1590	55

Illustrations

Fig. 17. Wedgwood cameo, Am I Not a Man and a Brother? , nineteenth century	102
Fig. 18. Token, Am I Not a Woman and a Sister? , 1838	102
Fig. 19. Jules-Robert Auguste, Les amies , ca. 1820–30	104
Fig. 20. Giacomo Ginotti, Abolition of Slavery , 1877	106
Fig. 21. Frank Buchser, Black Girl in a Stream , ca. 1867–70	107
Fig. 22. Edmonia Lewis, Forever Free (originally titled The Morning of Liberty), 1867	108
Fig. 23. Jean Isy de Botton, Portrait of Josephine Baker , 1929	111
Fig. 24. Emma Amos, Creatures of the Night , 1985	113
Fig. 25. Alison Saar, Si j'étais blanc , 1981	115
Fig. 26. Alison Saar, Untitled , from Crossroads , 1989	117
Fig. 27. Renée Stout, Fetish #2 , 1988	121
Fig. 28. Faith Ringgold, The Flag Is Bleeding , 1967	129
Fig. 29. Faith Ringgold, Help: Slave Rape Series #15 , 1973	131
Fig. 30. Jeff Donaldson, Aunt Jemima (and the Pillsbury Doughboy) '64 , 1963–64	134
Fig. 31. Joe Overstreet, The New Jemima , 1964	135
Fig. 32. Betye Saar, The Liberation of Aunt Jemima , 1972	136
Fig. 33. Faith Ringgold, Fight: Slave Rape Series #13 , 1973	138
Fig. 34. Faith Ringgold, Fight: To Save Your Life , 1972	141
Fig. 35. Faith Ringgold, Help: Slave Rape Series #16 , 1973	146
Fig. 36. James VanDerZee, Nude by the Fireplace , 1923	184
Fig. 37. J. T. Zealy, Drana , 1850	186
Fig. 38. J. T. Zealy, Delia , 1850	186
Fig. 39. Anonymous, Zulu Bride and Bridegroom , ca. 1896	188
Fig. 40. Sims's speculum	270
Fig. 41. Norplant advertisement, 1992	283
Fig. 42. Norplant advertisement, 1992	284
Fig. 43. Norplant advertisement, 1992	286
Fig. 44. LoEstrin advertisement, 1989	287