

Acknowledgments

This volume involved the good efforts of many people—contributors, editors, publishers, reviewers, others. The editors thank each other for making this project such a congenial one. We also thank the contributors for submitting their chapters in a timely way and for dedicating themselves to producing quality scholarship. Thanks also go to Wesley Bryant for his excellent assistance during the final stages of editing. Thanks as well to Jeremy Shine at the University of Michigan Press for shepherding this book to completion. And lastly, thanks to our families for supporting our efforts on this project.

Chapter 4 in this volume by Martin Gilens builds on his book Why Americans Hate Welfare: Race, Media, and the Politics of Antipoverty Policy (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1999).

Chapter 7 is based on research supported by a grant from the Center for American Women and Politics (CAWP), New Brunswick, N.J., and appeared as a CAWP report.

Chapter 8 is a shortened and revised version of chapter 6 from Sanford F. Schram, Praxis for the Poor: Piven and Cloward and the Future of Social Science in Social Welfare (New York: New York University Press, 2002).

Chapter 9 includes revised material from Joe Soss, Sanford F. Schram, Thomas P. Vartanian, and Erin O'Brien, "Setting the Terms of Relief: Explaining State Policy Choices in the Devolution Revolution," American Journal of Political Science 45 (April 2001): 378–95.

Chapter 10 is a revised and expanded version of Susan T. Gooden, "All Things Not Being Equal: Difference in Caseworker Support toward Black and White Welfare Clients," Harvard Journal of African American Public Policy 4 (1999): 23–33.
