

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

While writing this book, I was fortunate enough to receive the assistance of many people. I want first to thank my colleagues Marvin Carlson, Jean Graham-Jones, and Judy Milhous for the many fruitful conversations I had with them about this project and for their close reading of individual chapters. I am grateful to other colleagues at the Graduate Center for their help and support: Glenn Burger, John Graziano, Pamela Sheingorn, and Jeffrey Taylor. I want to thank the two anonymous readers for the University of Michigan Press and my friends in the profession who have given me invaluable feedback along the way: Alan Ackerman, Charlotte Canning, Tracy Davis, Jill Dolan, Rob Hume, Willmar Sauter, Rose Subotnik, and Stacy Wolf. LeAnn Fields has yet again proven invaluable for her encouragement, support, and suggestions for making the book more accessible to nonspecialist readers. I want to express my appreciation to my graduate students working in related fields, with whom I have had many stimulating conversations: Kevin Byrne, Kimon Keramidas, Ken Nielsen, and Constance Zaytoun. I especially want to thank my friends who nourished and sustained me during the five long years I was writing this book: Glenn Berger, Michael Cohen, Charles Curkin, David Hult, Richard Niles, Don Shewey, Brian Smith, Scott Teagarden, Paula Vogel, and KC Witherell. Finally, I owe the greatest debt to my sister, Shelley Savran Houlihan, for her boundless generosity and love, and to Daniel Gundlach, who helped and cheered me every step of the way, proofread the manuscript, and most important, gave me the confidence to write about music.
