

Contents

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	ix
INTRODUCTION	1
PART ONE
CHAPTER 1. Beyond Kanticism to Being-with	9
I. The Kanticism of Law	11
II. Kant's Critique of Judgment	16
III. The Limits of Our Kanticism	21
IV. Starting in Another Place	23
CHAPTER 2. Before Reason: Being-in-the-World-with-Others	26
I. Heidegger: From Reason to Being-in-the-World	27
II. Levinas: The Importance of the Other	36
III. Being-in-the-World-with-Others as the Union of the Judgment of the Beautiful and the Sublime	43
IV. Retracing Our Steps	48
CHAPTER 3. The Failure of Retribution	52
I. What Is Punishment? Consequentialism and Kanticism in Our Theories of Punishment	53
II. Victim-Centered Theories	60
III. Communication Theories	63
CHAPTER 4. A New Approach: The Mercy of Punishment	67
I. The Verstand of Punishment: Wrong as "Obdurate Indifference"	69
II. The Befindlichkeit of Punishment as Pain	76
III. The Rede of Punishment as Sentence	80
IV. Punishment and Mercy: Summary	87

V. Questions and Objections	88
VI. Conclusion	100
PART TWO
CHAPTER 5. The Ethics of Mercy: The Pardon Cases	107
I. A Pardon Bestiary	108
II. Good Pardons, Bad Pardons	127
III. The Merciless State	132
CHAPTER 6. Miscarriages of Mercy?	134
I. The Military Culture	141
II. Lenity in the Military Trial Process	143
III. When the Victim Is an Outsider	146
IV. Convict and Forgive	155
CONCLUSION: Fallen Angels	161
I. The Accounting of the Count	162
II. Grace in Disgrace	177
NOTES	185
BIBLIOGRAPHY	237
INDEX	251