Contents

Introduction: Germany’s Wild East 1

1. Constructing German Colonial Space in the East: Gustav Freytag’s Soll und Haben as Colonial Novel 29

2. The Black Pole and Racialized Space in German Inner Colonial Literature 57

3. A German Dracula: Fontane’s Effi Briest and the Anxiety of a Reverse-Diffusional Slavic Flood 96

5. Architectural Doppelgänger and “Post-Colonial” Spatial Claims in Fritz Lang’s Nibelungen 160

Conclusion 202

Notes 211

Bibliography 237

Index 251

Illustrations following page 130