

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Preface	xiii
Nicholas Onuf
ONE A New Look at Constructivism	I
Mariano E. Bertucci, Jarrod Hayes, and Patrick James
TWO Constructivism in International Relations: The Story So Far
Mariano E. Bertucci, Jarrod Hayes, and Patrick James	15
THREE The Future of Constructivism: A Constructivist Assessment	33
David M. McCourt
FOUR On Constructivism, Realism, and Contingency	47
Oliver Kessler and Brent Steele
FIVE Constructivism and the Logic of Legitimation	67
Stacie E. Goddard and Ronald R. Krebs
SIX The Power of Prejudice: The Race Gap in Constructivist International Relations Scholarship	87
Audie Klotz
SEVEN Technology and Constructivism: Interrogating the Material-Ideational Divide	103
Jordan Branch

EIGHT	Integrating Social Psychological Insights into Constructivist Research	117
	Jennifer M. Ramos
NINE	New Wine into a (Not So) Old Bottle? Constructivism and the Practice Turn	137
	Jérémie Cornut
TEN	Securitization Theory: Toward a Replicable Framework for Analysis	155
	Thomas Jamieson
ELEVEN	A Realist Perspective on the Constructivist Project	181
	Charles Glaser
TWELVE	Realism, Uncertainty, and the Security Dilemma: Identity and the Tantalizing Promise of Transformed International Relations	197
	David Blagden
THIRTEEN	If It Is Everything, It Is Nothing: An Argument for Specificity in Constructivisms	227
	Laura Sjöberg and J. Samuel Barkin
FOURTEEN	Moving Forward	243
	Mariano E. Bertucci, Jarrod Hayes, and Patrick James
	Epilogue: Constructivism and Global International Relations: False Promise to Vanguard	263
	Amitav Acharya
	About the Authors	279
	Index	281